Weekly presentations that are mind-expanding, informative and challenging

May 2

“Overlooked and Forgotten: The Italian Women Artists of the Renaissance” Chuck Tampio, docent Tucson Museum of Art, will give a presentation which takes a look at ten of the most prominent of these female artists and explores their wonderful works of art. In many ways their works are as accomplished as those of their male contemporaries.

May 9

“The Live Theatre Workshop” Michael Martinez, Executive Director of Tucson's Live Theater Workshop along with other performers from the theater will present a musical review of Broadway hits. This will be followed by a presentation and some video clips highlighting this small theater's mission and role in Tucson's theatrical community.

May 16

“The Borderlands Food Bank” Yolanda Soto, President and CEO of Borderlands Food Bank says that each year between 35 and 40 million pounds of safe, edible vegetables and fruits are rejected at the U.S./Mexican border and designated for landfill. Yolanda says, “No” and will tell us how Borderlands redirects the rejects to needy families and causes.

May 23

“The Newfoundland Dog, a Gentle Giant” Richard Welch, Green Valley owner of two “Gentle Giants” will point out some of the unusual physical features and describe some of the unique abilities of this breed of very large dogs. He will be accompanied by Ziggy (160 lbs) and Mason (185 lbs) his father and son canine family.

May 30

“Strolling Valley Players Readers Theater” Several members of GVR's Strolling Valley Players Club will explain the mission of their Readers Theater and entertain the audience with several examples of their work. They read short, comedic scripts and have loads of fun. The audience will surely share in the fun and laughter.
